I do not think the Depot keep on issuing Ragi at 10 seers the rupee - The price may be raised to 9 seers per rupee to start with -

If ragi is issued at undepot cheaper than what private merchants can sell it at, all purchasers crowd to the depots & the stock will soon be exhausted - At the same time merchants complain that they are unable to trade & get an easy excuse to hold up what grain they have -

The depots should sell at actual cost price that is approximately or hereby at the market rate -

The practical system may be different i.e. sell cheaper than the purchased and arrange for Y.I.3

'Cost price' would be impossible to work as different lots might have been bought at different rates. If approved it will be left to issue at the market rate as approximately as possible.
